

CULTURE PROGRAM STATUS UPDATE

January to February 2015

Hui Kāpehe Program

A recent partnership with Honolulu Community College's Po'i Nā Nalu program was a great success. Honolulu Community College has begun recruiting for the Hui Kāpehe Program within its college. Partnerships with other university programs need to be solidified before we post for recruitment. The internship program provides its participants with a well rounded set of skills and work experience. Kaho'olawe provides the opportunity for the participants to slow down and focus on important tasks without various distractions.

Site 110BU Stabilization Plan

No response from SHPD has been received regarding our proposed plan. A review should have been received by January 29, 2015. A copy of the plan has been sent to Morgan Davis at the SHPD Maui office for a quicker response. A response should be received by early March.

Erosion control methods continue and are progressing towards Moa'ula to help slow down the effects of gushing water during heavy rains.

Work days are scheduled for every fourth Saturday. Community participant numbers are growing and progress continues towards creating an interactive trail with displays are. All structures and displays should be erected by May 2015.

Ala Loa and Kahualele Honokanai'a

Trail maintenance and use is key to keeping trails alive. Culture Program volunteers routinely use the trail from Honokanai'a to Honoko'a to help maintain and line the trail.

The Kahualele is nearly complete. Access support is needed to complete the structure.

Culture Program Status Update

March to April 2015

Hui Kāpehe Program

Recruitment opportunities have expanded to Moloka‘i, Lāna‘i, and more of O‘ahu. Honolulu Community College has continued recruiting for the Hui Kāpehe Program within their college and Leeward Community College has jumped on board as well. Three students from UH Mānoa who have returned home to Maui for the summer are on board as well. Two sets of three back to back accesses have been reserved for the program participants to complete their training and internship hours.

The internship program provides its participants with a well rounded set of skills and work experience. Kaho‘olawe provides the opportunity for the participants to slow down and focus on important tasks without various distractions.

Site 110BU Stabilization Plan

SHPD has approved the stabilization plan. Building materials are being staged in the work area and erosion control plantings continue as well. Erection of the retaining wall is planned for the June Hui Kāpehe access.
